

Smart Click remembers your favourite transactions

Trending Stories

Improper use of child sitting, carrying devices can lead to injury, death: Experts

OCBC third-quarter earnings down 27 per cent from a year earlier

Claim and registration process for relocation of niches at Mount Vernon starts Oct 28: NEA

US to sail again near islets claimed by China

Fear not, eat bratwurst, says German food minister

Rain brings respite from the haze

Chief Justice sets out guidelines for dealing with young re-offenders

Indonesia considers national emergency over forest fires: VP

Amazon Prime Now drivers sue for unpaid overtime

Holders Chelsea crash out with Arsenal in League Cup

MORE ASIA PACIFIC NEWS

US to sail again near islets claimed by China 6 hours ago

Desperate Afghan-Pakistan quake victims appeal for aid 8 hours ago

China warships warned US navy patrol in South China Sea 9 hours ago

RECOMMENDED FOR YOU

Amazon Prime Now drivers sue for unpaid overtime

Parents receive body of first Russian to die in Syria, doubt suicide

Trump: Dad's 'small loan' of US$1m got him started

In the rearview mirror: car designer warns on Google game changer

In the rearview mirror: car designer warns on Google game changer

ASIA PACIFIC

China suffers 250,000 road deaths a year: WHO

In a global status report on road safety, the World Health Organization estimated 261,367 people were killed in 2013 in the world's most populous country.

POSTED: 20 Oct 2015 21:27

PHOTOS

This file photo shows heavy traffic headed toward downtown Shanghai. (Photo: AFP/Files/Philippe Lopez)

f 37 t 16 in 0 Email More

BEIJING: More than 250,000 people are killed on China's notoriously dangerous roads every year, the World Health Organization (WHO) said - over four times official government statistics.

In a global status report on road safety, the WHO estimated 261,367 people were killed in 2013 in the world's most populous country. China is the world's biggest auto market and its growing middle class is increasingly able to afford cars.

The WHO figures are strikingly higher than official pronouncements, in a country where official statistics are often questioned. According to China's National Bureau of Statistics, 58,539 traffic fatalities were reported in 2013 - less than a quarter of the WHO's approximation.

Fatal road accidents are a serious problem in China, where traffic regulations are often flouted. The country's frequently overcrowded long-distance buses are prone to accidents, with individual incidents regularly causing dozens of deaths.

"It is not enough to adopt laws," China's WHO representative Bernhard Schwartlaender wrote in state media in May. "They must also be properly and rigorously enforced."

According to the WHO report, released Monday, China's estimated traffic-related death rate of 18.8 per 100,000 people was in line with the 18.5 average for middle-income countries but higher than the 9.3 seen in high-income nations.

Death rates remain comparatively high in China because of inadequate rescue systems and poor treatment, according to a study by Chinese researchers published in April by medical journal The Lancet.

More than one in four who died on China's roads were pedestrians, the WHO report said, citing statistics from China's ministry of public security, and the vast majority of fatalities - 72 per cent - were men.

Road injuries are the third leading cause of years of life lost to premature death in China, ranking above any individual form of cancer, according to the Global Burden of Disease Study, a global research programme.

- AFP/yt

MORE STORIES FOR YOU

Claim process starts for relocation of Mount Vernon Columbarium niches

Tractor beams of science fiction becoming a reality

Illegal car mods: Repeat offenders will face more frequent inspections

Thye Hua Kwan Moral Society wins bid to build temple at Fernvale Link

Advertisement for 1800flowers.com featuring 'Fall Flowers & Gifts Starting at $29.99' and a 'SHOP NOW' button.

Navigation bar with 'HOME', 'ASIA PACIFIC', and 'JUMP TO' dropdown menu. News snippets for 'Myanmar to allow EU election observers into military bases' and 'Thailand plans new military unit to curb online dissent'.

YOU MAY ALSO LIKE

At 95, she was walking to her bowling league when she was hit by...
(Post TV by The Washington Post)

New Solar Panels Leave Energy Companies Outraged
(ModernTips - financial tips and tricks to help you)

Forget Googling them, this site reveals all. Simply enter a name...
(Instant Checkmate)

Think Your FICO Score Is Just About Credit? Think Again
(Transamerica)

Twin Storms Could Cause Tropical Trouble
(The Weather Channel on The Scene)

16 Hottest Mugshots Of All Time
#hotandbusted (BrainJet)

Recommended by

SOCIAL NEWS

POPULAR ON OUR WEBSITE

Bacon and other processed meats can cause cancer, experts say

POPULAR ON TWITTER

City Harvest trial: 6 leaders found guilty on all charges, out on bail

POPULAR ON FACEBOOK

Live updates: All 6 accused in City Harvest trial found guilty

'Inappropriate' to call for Workers' Party to lead evidence before COI: WP

Ong Keng Sen 'embarrassed' talking about Singapore in front of international artists

Ong Keng Sen 'embarrassed' talking about Singapore in front of international artists

JUMP TO

Navigate to: NEWS TV

GET OUR APPS

- iPad/iPhone
- Windows Mobile
- Android
- Blackberry

GET OUR NEWS

NEWS

- Asia Pacific
- World
- Sport
- Technology
- Lifestyle
- Photos
- Archives
- Singapore
- Business
- Entertainment
- Health
- Videos
- Special Reports

TV

- Live | News | Schedule | Shows

SERVICES

Weather

ADVERTISE WITH US

- Online | Mobile | TV | Contact Sales

CHANNEL NEWSASIA

- About Us | Coverage | Hotel Partners | Events & Seminars | Presenters & Correspondents | Contact Us

MEDIA CORP MediaCorp News Group © 2015

About MediaCorp Pte Ltd | Terms and Conditions | Privacy Policy

Back To Top