PANAJI: Acting on the recommendations made by the Supreme Court appointed three-member committee, the Goa government has notified the State Road Safety Policy, and has announced a slew of initiatives to make the tourist state's roads a safer place to drive upon, director of transport Arun Desai said.

The policy has proposed the setting up of road safety councils and road safety review committees that will meet once in six months and once in three months respectively. The policy has also mooted for a road engineering cell comprising PWD, transport department and police officials who will inspect accident prone sites and recommend corrective measures.

Goa's PWD has already floated a tender for a road safety audit agency, in line with the policy's recommendations, government officials stated.

The transport department will procure six interceptors, 20 speed radar guns, 50 breath analyzers, delineators, and other reflective lighting equipment to improve visibility on the roads, Desai said. Desai added that his department would also launch a year-round awareness campaign involving print and electronic media while also screening documentaries at theatres.

The Goa road safety policy emphasizes on enforcement, engineering, education and emergency services.
